Matthew

The Book of Matthew is the first book of the New Testament in the Christian Bible. It is one of the four Gospels, along with Mark, Luke, and John, and is believed to have been written by Matthew, one of the twelve apostles of Jesus Christ.

The book begins with the genealogy of Jesus, tracing his lineage back to Abraham, and then proceeds to recount the life, teachings, and ministry of Jesus. The Gospel of Matthew contains many of Jesus' most famous teachings, such as the Sermon on the Mount (Chapters 5-7), the parables of the Kingdom of Heaven (Chapter 13), and the Great Commission (Chapter 28).

The Gospel of Matthew also includes accounts of Jesus' miracles, including healings, exorcisms, and his resurrection. It portrays Jesus as the Messiah, the Son of God, and the King of the Jews.

Matthew's Gospel also includes several important theological themes, such as the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies through Jesus, the importance of faith and obedience to God, and the promise of eternal life through faith in Jesus Christ.

In summary, the Book of Matthew is a rich and complex account of the life and teachings of Jesus Christ, presented from the perspective of one of his closest disciples. It is a foundational text for Christian theology and has had a profound impact on Western culture and society.

Chapter 1 of the book of Matthew is the first chapter in the New Testament and it begins with a genealogy of Jesus Christ, tracing his lineage back to Abraham, the father of the Jewish nation. The genealogy highlights the fact that Jesus was a descendant of King David, which was important because the Jewish people believed that the Messiah would come from David's line.

The chapter then goes on to describe the circumstances surrounding Jesus' birth. It tells the story of how Mary, Jesus' mother, became pregnant by the Holy Spirit, and how Joseph, her fiancé, was visited by an angel who told him not to be afraid to take Mary as his wife.

The chapter also includes a prophecy from the Old Testament book of Isaiah, which predicts the birth of Jesus. This prophecy is fulfilled by the events described in this chapter.

The chapter concludes with the birth of Jesus in Bethlehem, and the visit of the wise men from the East who come to worship him. The wise men bring gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh, which were traditional gifts for a king.

Overall, chapter 1 of the book of Matthew sets the stage for the story of Jesus' life, and establishes his identity as the long-awaited Messiah of the Jewish people.

2. Verse 18 - "Now the birth of Jesus Christ took place in this way. When his mother Mary had been betrothed to Joseph, before they came together she was found to be with child from the Holy Spirit." This verse describes the miraculous conception of Jesus and emphasizes his divine nature.

These verses can be found in Matthew chapter 1, verses 1, 18, 21, and 23, respectively

Chapter 2 of the book of Matthew begins with the visit of the wise men from the East who had come to worship Jesus. They had seen a star in the sky which they believed signaled the birth of a king, and they came to Jerusalem to find out where the baby had been born. King Herod, who ruled over Judea, was troubled by their visit, as he feared that this new king might threaten his own power. He asked the religious leaders where the Messiah was to be born, and they told him that it was in Bethlehem, as foretold by the prophet Micah.

Herod then secretly summoned the wise men and asked them to report back to him when they had found the baby, claiming that he too wanted to worship him. The wise men continued on their way and found Jesus in Bethlehem, presenting him with gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

However, the wise men were warned in a dream not to return to Herod, and so they returned to their own country by a different route. When Herod realized that he had been tricked, he became furious and ordered the massacre of all the male infants in Bethlehem who were two years old or younger. This fulfilled the prophecy of Jeremiah, who had spoken of the weeping and mourning of mothers over their lost children.

Joseph, Mary, and Jesus were warned in a dream by an angel and fled to Egypt to escape Herod's wrath. They stayed in Egypt until Herod died, and then returned to the land of Israel. However, when they learned that Herod's son was now ruling in Judea, they decided to settle in the town of Nazareth in Galilee.

Chapter 3 of the book of Matthew introduces John the Baptist, who comes preaching in the wilderness and baptizing people in the Jordan River. He calls on people to repent of their sins and turn to God, warning them that the kingdom of heaven is near.

John also speaks of a coming Messiah who will baptize with the Holy Spirit and fire, and he acknowledges Jesus as this Messiah when he comes to be baptized by him. As Jesus emerges from the water, a voice from heaven declares, "This is my Son, whom I love; with him I am well pleased."

After his baptism, Jesus is led by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. The devil tempts him with various temptations, but Jesus resists each one by quoting scripture. After this, Jesus begins his public ministry, preaching the same message of repentance and the coming kingdom of heaven that John had proclaimed.

John continues to preach and baptize, but he is eventually arrested by King Herod for criticizing his marriage to his brother's wife. Jesus then begins to preach in Galilee, where he performs many miracles and heals the sick, drawing large crowds to hear him.

Jesus resists each temptation by quoting scripture and ultimately sends the devil away.

After this, Jesus begins his public ministry in Galilee, preaching the message of repentance and the coming kingdom of heaven. He calls his first disciples, Simon Peter, Andrew, James, and John, who leave their fishing boats and follow him.

Jesus then travels throughout Galilee, teaching in synagogues and healing the sick.

Crowds begin to follow him, and his fame spreads throughout the region.

In this chapter, Matthew also emphasizes the fulfillment of Old Testament prophecies in Jesus' ministry. Jesus then goes on to teach about various aspects of living a life of righteousness and holiness. He teaches about the importance of being salt and light in the world, of loving one's enemies and praying for those who persecute you, of being reconciled with others, of avoiding anger and lust, and of living with integrity and honesty.

Jesus also addresses various religious practices and attitudes, teaching that true righteousness is not just a matter of external actions but of the heart. Jesus then teaches about the importance of discernment, urging his followers to be wary of false prophets who come in sheep's clothing but are inwardly ravenous wolves. He says that we can recognize these false prophets by their fruits, and encourages his followers to choose the narrow path that leads to life, rather than the broad path that leads to destruction.

Jesus also emphasizes the importance of putting his teachings into practice, saying that those who hear his words but do not act on them are like foolish builders who build their houses on sand. Jesus uses this parable to encourage his followers to be prepared for his return, because they do not know when it will happen.

Verses 14-30: The Parable of the Talents. Jesus tells a story about a man who goes on a journey and entrusts his wealth to his servants. To one servant he gives five talents, to another he gives two, and to another he gives one, each according to his ability. The servant with five talents doubles his money, as does the servant with two talents, but the servant with one talent buries it in the ground. When the master returns, he rewards the first two servants but punishes the third. Jesus uses this parable to encourage his followers to use their gifts and abilities to serve God, because they will be held accountable for how they use them.

Verses 31-46: The Judgment of the Nations. Jesus describes the final judgment, in which the Son of Man will separate the sheep (representing the righteous) from the goats (representing the wicked). He will say to the righteous, "Come, you who are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world," and to the wicked, "Depart from me, you cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels." Notes:

Christian Bible's book of Matthew are the most difficult or have no answer. However, there are certain passages or teachings in the book of Matthew that have been debated or interpreted in various ways by scholars and theologians throughout history. Here are a few examples:

1. The Parable of the Wheat and the Tares (Matthew 13:24-30, 36-43) - This parable describes a farmer who sows good seed in his field, but an enemy comes and sows tares among the wheat. When the workers ask the farmer if they should remove the tares, he tells them to let both grow together until the harvest. This parable has been interpreted in various ways, with some seeing it as a warning against false teachers and others seeing it as a call for patience and tolerance.
2. The "Unforgivable Sin" (Matthew 12:31-32) - Jesus states that all sins and blasphemies will be forgiven, except for blasphemy against the Holy Spirit, which will not be forgiven in this age or the age to come. This passage has been debated by scholars and theologians over the centuries, with some suggesting that it refers to a specific act of rejecting the Holy Spirit and others seeing it as a metaphor for persistent and unrepentant sin.
3. The Identity of the "Son of Man" (Matthew 16:13-20) - In this passage, Jesus asks his disciples who people say that the Son of Man is, and then asks them who they say he is. Peter answers that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, and Jesus tells him that he is blessed and that he will build his church on this confession. The identity of the "Son of Man" has been debated by scholars and theologians, with some seeing it as a reference to Jesus' human nature, while others see it as a reference to his divine nature.

While these passages and teachings may be difficult to fully understand or interpret, they are still considered important parts of the Christian faith and have been studied and discussed by scholars and believers for centuries.
